Reading Comprehension

Question 1:

Although many cities have expanded their public transportation systems, the effect on traffic congestion has varied. Researchers suggest that simply adding new routes does not guarantee fewer cars on the road; factors such as service frequency, reliability, and convenience also influence whether commuters switch from private vehicles.

According to the passage, which of the following is most strongly supported?

- A. Expanding public transportation always reduces congestion.
- B. Commuters consider only ticket prices when choosing transportation.
- C. The effectiveness of public transportation depends on factors beyond the number of available routes.
- D. Private vehicles are the primary cause of congestion in every city.
- E. Public transportation is less reliable than private transportation.

Answer: C

Question 2:

Some historians once believed that the decline of a particular ancient civilisation resulted primarily from prolonged drought. More recent archaeological evidence, however, indicates that the civilisation experienced several periods of drought without collapsing. Researchers now argue that political instability and declining trade may have interacted with environmental pressures.

The passage suggests that the historians' original explanation was:

- A. supported by all archaeological evidence
- B. too focused on a single factor
- C. based entirely on political evidence
- D. unrelated to environmental conditions
- E. rejected because drought never occurred

Answer: B

Question 3:

A company introduced a four-day workweek and observed that employee productivity remained stable while reported job satisfaction increased. However, because the company did not compare its employees with a similar group working five days a week, it cannot determine whether the shorter workweek alone caused the increase in satisfaction.

Which of the following is the primary limitation of the study?

- A. The study measured productivity.
- B. The company changed its work schedule.
- C. There was no comparable control group.
- D. Employees reported higher satisfaction.
- E. The study lasted several months.

Answer: C

Question 4:

The discovery of inexpensive digital publishing has lowered the barriers to becoming a published author. Nevertheless, traditional publishers continue to play an important role because editing, marketing, distribution, and professional review can provide benefits that independent publication may not always offer.

Which statement best captures the main idea of the passage?

- A. Digital publishing has eliminated traditional publishing.
- B. Traditional publishers are no longer commercially viable.
- C. Digital publishing has made writing easier but has not eliminated the value of traditional publishing.
- D. Independent authors generally produce higher-quality books.
- E. Traditional publishers primarily provide financial support.

Answer: C

Question 5:

Researchers studying sleep have found that memory consolidation does not occur uniformly throughout the night. Certain stages of sleep appear particularly important for consolidating different types of information. Thus, simply increasing the total number of hours of sleep may not fully explain differences in memory performance.

Which of the following can be inferred from the passage?

- A. More sleep always produces better memory.
- B. Different stages of sleep may contribute differently to memory.
- C. Memory consolidation occurs only during deep sleep.
- D. Sleep duration has no effect on memory.
- E. Researchers have identified one stage responsible for all memory formation.
